

The Times-Dispatch
DAILY—WEEKLY—SUNDAY.

Business Office.....115 E. Main Street.
Managers Office.....115 E. Main Street.
Editorial Office.....115 E. Main Street.
Post Office.....115 E. Main Street.
Daily with Sunday.....$5.00 $10.00 $15.00
Daily without Sunday.....4.00 2.00 1.00
Sunday edition only.....2.00 1.00 .50
Weekly (Wednesday).....1.00 .50 .25

By Times-Dispatch Carrier Delivery Service in Richmond (and suburbs), Manchester and Petersburg—
One Week.....14 cents
Daily without Sunday.....10 cents
Sunday only.....5 cents

Entered January 27, 1909, at Richmond, Va., as second-class matter under act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 27, 1909.

THE RATE CASE AGAIN.

Proceedings covering almost two years have done little to get a legal settlement of the two-cent rate issue in Virginia. The refusal of the Supreme Court yesterday to entertain an appeal from the railroad leaves the whole situation very much in the air. By the ruling of the United States Supreme Court, Judge Pritchard's restraining order stands for the moment as law. Yet the agreement of August 3, 1907, between the State and the roads prevents the latter from taking advantage of its possibilities. They are to maintain the two-cent rate until the case has been decided upon its merits, and no man can say when that day will be.

Since the rate now in effect by mutual agreement is the one whose promulgation the roads complained of as confiscatory, it may be assumed that they desire to have it reviewed by the courts as promptly as may be. The next step now, however, would be in the Circuit Court of Appeals; and application to this court must be made by the State, which alone desires relief from the order of the inferior Federal court. The State, protected as it is, might be well satisfied to leave matters as they are. But the agreement stipulated that both complainants and defendants co-operate in every practicable way to expedite the obtaining of the earliest possible moment of decision in said causes by the Supreme Court of the United States. The State is, therefore, in honor bound to take an appeal to the higher Circuit Court as soon as it is practicable.

The intent of the existing compact was evidently to keep the agreed rate in effect until the issues involved had been finally adjudicated in the United States Supreme Court. The State's interests thus appear to be fully guarded, and once more the fullest credit should be given to the spirit in which the roads accepted the reduced rate pending judicial review. But to carry this case now through two Federal courts will involve expensive litigation and further long delays in getting a final settlement. We cannot persuade ourselves that such tedious procedure is essential. Certainly there appear no insuperable difficulties in the way of a permanent adjustment out of court between representatives of the State and of the roads. Compromise rates have seemed to work out satisfactorily to both parties in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee and Alabama, and we know of no reason why a similar arrangement should not prove equally acceptable in Virginia.

CHARACTER AND CALUMNY.

"The use of character," said Edmund Burke, "is to be a shield against calumny." That was in 1780, and it was at about the same time that Thomas Jefferson was using all of his great powers to equip himself with the best answer to the surer defense against falsehood was unvarnished truth and the best answer to misrepresentation was an open and uncoerced life.

President Roosevelt, however, is neither Burke nor Jefferson, and so far as his actions have bespoken his feelings he himself places small confidence in the capacity of the people to judge soundly or fairly when a public character has been assailed in the daily papers.

MR. TAFT AND THE TARIFF COMMISSION.

Probably few persons had understood Mr. Taft's advocacy of a tariff commission to include the removal of this phase of revenue legislation from the hands of Congress. Certainly the growing demand for a saner and more intelligent system of regulating customs duties has not looked to that end, nor would such extreme treatment of the problem be necessary or advisable. The misconception of his earlier letter, to which the President-elect refers, could hardly have been more than political strategies. At any rate, he has now made his position plain beyond any misunderstanding. What he wants is "a permanent commission of tariff experts" who shall "keep themselves advised by all the means possible of the cost of producing the articles named in the schedules in foreign countries and in this country."

This is the position which a judicial-minded man of Mr. Taft's measure, unwavering by personal interests, would naturally take. His straightforward expression of it is worth something to a cause which will doubtless need all the help it can get to make itself triumphant. The proposal to create a tariff commission will certainly be fought tooth and nail by all the beneficiaries of protection, and demonstrated again and again. It would not be necessary for such a tariff commission to have legislative powers to put a tremendous clasp in the earnings of the battered interests. Mere publicity would be enough to accomplish that. The recommendations of a body of this sort would be accepted by the country as largely

"honorable to those who had served them and consolatory to the friend of man who believes he may be trusted with his own affairs."

These opinions, which Mr. Jefferson entertained throughout his whole life, were founded on the fundamental principle that "the press is impotent when it abandons itself to falsehood," and so Mr. Jefferson, in 1802, having liberated the men who were being prosecuted under the sedition acts, wrote to Levi Lincoln: "I wish to see the experiment tried of settling along without public prosecutions for libels. I believe we can do it. Patience and well-doing, instead of punishment if it can be found sufficiently efficacious, would be a happy change in the instruments of government."

It was also under Mr. Jefferson's administration that the sedition acts, which were framed primarily to prevent the freedom of the press, were repealed, and he himself never made any effort to defend his reputation further than by the openness of his life. With-out defending the course of the New York World in its implication that the Panama deal hid something of corruption, we do not hesitate to say that were Mr. Jefferson alive to-day he would see in the action of the Federal government a grave blunder, if not a deliberate attack on that freedom of inquiry, that responsiveness to public scrutiny of governmental acts upon which, in the last analysis, all democratic administration must finally rest.

AS TO SODIUM BENZOATE.

At first glance the defeat which has crowned Dr. Wiley's vigorous fight against sodium benzoate appears to be overwhelming. He has done his utmost to bring this preservative under the ban of the pure food law, only to have his findings now overruled at every point by a group of experts of high authority. The referee board of chemists, after three courses of experiments with "poison squads" each conducted independently, declares that benzoate, whether in large or small doses, "is not injurious to health"; that it does not "act as a poison in the general acceptance of the term," and that it does not "injuriously affect or impair the quality or nutritive value of such food." Inasmuch as the opinions of these men, thus arrived at, are entitled to the greatest respect, it might appear that Dr. Wiley's contrary convictions were entitled to very little, and that his value to the government service was largely impaired.

But such a conclusion would be both hasty and unfair. In the first place, benzoate may be in itself altogether harmless, and yet at the same time be a substance whose extensive use in food products is anything but desirable. It may "preserve" products altogether unworthy of preservation. The New York Journal of Commerce sums up this point excellently when it says: "If by the introduction of benzoate of soda it is possible to use vegetables that are on the point of decay, milk that has become stale, or ingredients that are not of first-class character, the case against the preservative is as strong from the pure food standpoint as it ever was." Dr. Wiley's hostility to this compound would thus in no case be discredited.

But beyond the technical questions involved in this dispute, his position has meant a vigorous stand in the interest of the public health. On such a matter it is surely better to be over-strict than over-lax, and if the government chief erred, he erred in the direction that may be unfortunate. It may well result in a subtle "letting up" in the rigorous policy of the Bureau of Chemistry. How far the rumors of Dr. Wiley's impending resignation are true, it is impossible to say, though they sound convincing enough. If he should be succeeded in office by an "easier" official who held lenient views on the subject of preservatives and adulterants, the country would no doubt have good cause to regret his going.

Unassailable as the decision of the referee board undoubtedly is, its effect may be unfortunate. It may well result in a subtle "letting up" in the rigorous policy of the Bureau of Chemistry. How far the rumors of Dr. Wiley's impending resignation are true, it is impossible to say, though they sound convincing enough. If he should be succeeded in office by an "easier" official who held lenient views on the subject of preservatives and adulterants, the country would no doubt have good cause to regret his going.

MR. TAFT AND THE TARIFF COMMISSION.

Probably few persons had understood Mr. Taft's advocacy of a tariff commission to include the removal of this phase of revenue legislation from the hands of Congress. Certainly the growing demand for a saner and more intelligent system of regulating customs duties has not looked to that end, nor would such extreme treatment of the problem be necessary or advisable. The misconception of his earlier letter, to which the President-elect refers, could hardly have been more than political strategies. At any rate, he has now made his position plain beyond any misunderstanding. What he wants is "a permanent commission of tariff experts" who shall "keep themselves advised by all the means possible of the cost of producing the articles named in the schedules in foreign countries and in this country."

This is the position which a judicial-minded man of Mr. Taft's measure, unwavering by personal interests, would naturally take. His straightforward expression of it is worth something to a cause which will doubtless need all the help it can get to make itself triumphant. The proposal to create a tariff commission will certainly be fought tooth and nail by all the beneficiaries of protection, and demonstrated again and again. It would not be necessary for such a tariff commission to have legislative powers to put a tremendous clasp in the earnings of the battered interests. Mere publicity would be enough to accomplish that. The recommendations of a body of this sort would be accepted by the country as largely

Borrowed Jingles.

WISDOM.
The wisest man that ever lived
Was confounded by some other man;
The greatest seer may fail to see
The truth a ragged vagrant can;
The sage who has the greatest mind
By some poor clown might have been fooled
In some most foolish way.

Interest in the commission idea grows with the approach of the convention to be held in Indianapolis next month for the purpose of securing national organized advocacy of it. Three delegates from the Richmond Chamber of Commerce will attend the Indianapolis convention, and the country generally seems ready to give it strong backing. There is no politics in this movement. Its purpose, on the contrary, is to take the tariff out of politics, and it is just this that must commend it to thoughtful men. So far as the work of a commission would have any partisan aspect at all, we may hazard that its findings would not be in the least likely to sustain Republican principles as embodied in the Dingley act of 1897.

HYPOCRISY.

Little Willie: "Say, pa, what is a hypocrite?"
Pa: "A hypocrite, my son, is a man who looks like the Lord for a success and then goes and does anything but that."

WONDERFUL.

"I have been taking some moving pictures of life on your farm."
"Did you catch the hired man in motion?"
"I think so."
"Ah, science kin do anything these days!"
—Detroit Free Press.

LEARNED FATHER.

Friend: "You took your son into your establishment some months ago to teach him the business, I understand. How did it turn out?"
The father: "Man (wearily). "Great success. He's teaching me now."—Tit-bit.

HOBBES'S CHOICE.

"Whom would you rather entertain," asks the Philosopher of Poley, "a perfectly stupid bore, or a clever fellow who has just been abroad for the first time?"—Cleveland Leader.

PLEASE PASS THE BENZOATE OF SODA.

It is now proper to declare that the most important event in pugilistic circles within the past fifty years was the invention of the typewriter.

Advice to persons about to libel the United States: You can't.

WHEN WE CONSIDER THE WONDERFUL FERTILITY OF HIS PEN, WE ARE UNABLE TO SUPPRESS THE THOUGHT THAT MR. ROOSEVELT COULD GET RICH QUICKLY AT A DOLLAR A THOUSAND.

Japan wants peace with this country, and this country is ready to give it to her by the boat-load.

THERE'S A CLOUD TO EVERY SILVER LINING, TOO. LITTLE SPRING POTS ARE ALREADY SICKLING THEIR MUSES ON SIGNOR MARCONI, AND IT WON'T BE LONG BEFORE MR. BINNS GETS HIS.

Little did Jack Binns suspect one week ago to-day, that his name was ever to adorn the pages of the Congressional Record.

On this glorious January morning, when the happy citizens of Richmond are joyously starting upon a new day, it is indeed a sweetly solemn thought that George M. Bailey, the renowned vice-president of the Paragrapheers Union, is in a well-known Richmond hotel, enjoying in a breakfast of genuine Henrico county sausage, with the golden brown Bill Skillet Sally Linn sitting demurely on the side.

We note with pleasure that, despite the current unpleasantness, the Indianapolis News can mention Mr. Roosevelt's name without growing purple in the face.

Nor was there any considerable amount of fuss and feathers in the proceedings by which Senator Platt acquired an Ex.

COL. BAILEY, OF TEXAS.

In Richmond To-Day—Some Account of His Doings in Washington.

Our hero arrived himself or stop-over privileges at Nashville, Columbus and Cleveland, and made his headquarters in Washington Thursday. And Friday morning, taking two union delegates with him, he did just what he did in Capitol, And, oh, readers, if there ever was an Overland Institution, it is the Frigate of Fairbanks. As every body who remembers the Constitution knows, he is proxy of the electoral college, and the votes must be delivered to him.

AND WHEN HE HEARD WHO WAS WAITING TO SEE HIM, DIDN'T HE LEAVE THE CHAIR IN THE SENATE JUST BEFORE SENATOR NEWLANDS, OF NEVADA, MADE HIS MORE OR LESS IMPASSIONED SPEECH ABOUT THE LINCOLN MEMORIAL OR SOMETHING AND HOSTELRY, GLORIFYING IN A BREAKFAST OF WARMTH IN A NINE INDIANA ACCENT, AND AS MR. BAILEY WOULD SAY, ACT LIKE HE WAS GLAD TO SEE US? YOU HAVE GUESSED CORRECTLY.

UNUSUAL RULING.

Would a Virginia Judge Allow Jurors Such Latitude?

Judge Hart, who is presiding in the case of the late E. W. Carmack, an ex-Sheriff, is on trial for the murder of the late E. W. Carmack, has made a ruling that appears to be a very unusual one.

THE PRESS A MIKROK.

Not Responsible for Crime, nor Unwarrantable for Reporting It.

Mrs. Maud Ballington Booth in the course of a recent address in New Orleans made some observations on the press of the country which coincide with the mistaken views held by many other well-meaning persons. She said:

"I believe the press of the country is too much given to vivid painting of details of crime."

Should the press ignore crime who would be benefited? Would it prevent the devil from finding "still some mischief for idle hands to do?" Would it put manhood, bravery, pure thought and nobility in the hands of "vagrant minds?" Would it transform the vicious into law-abiding citizens? If the aggressive proslavery propaganda in which Mrs. Booth has been engaged does not accomplish these things how can she expect a negative policy on the part of the press to do so?

It is a useless waste of effort to try to purify a stream at its outlet. The source should be tackled first; then the outlet will take care of itself.

The newspaper, like the ministry and various other human sources of activity, probably has its weaknesses and its faults, but holding up the mirror of facts before the face of the world is not one of them. The time has come when the people of a perfect world will have the right to demand a perfect press, but we fear it will not come during Mrs. Booth's life.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

The Courts of Europe.

By La Marquise de Fontenay.

Chetwynd's Matrimonial Escapades.

NEW English families have furnished a greater number of interesting matrimonial incidents than the ancient house of Chetwynd, and this institution by the American wife, Guy Chetwynd, who is entirely in keeping with the traditions of the name. The wife of Mr. Guy Chetwynd, who is the only son of Sir George Chetwynd, and heir to his baronetcy, Guy's mother, who died four or five years ago, retained until the end of her life the name and title of her husband, and she was a most devoted wife. She was by birth a Paget, had married Lord Hastings, who was afterwards completely ruined through the extravagance of his wife, Harriet, at the Derby.

The widowed Marchioness of Hastings, married two years later Sir George Chetwynd, who was then a young man, and she was a most devoted wife. She was by birth a Paget, had married Lord Hastings, who was afterwards completely ruined through the extravagance of his wife, Harriet, at the Derby.

The election of few men to the Senate brought out a greater number of matrimonial incidents than that of Edward of New York. Since the elevation of Platt and Dewey the Empire State has not been so much the scene of matrimonial scandal as it once was. The special interests which claimed their devotion, but Mr. Root is of different character and of far more pronounced ability.—New York Ledger-Dispatch.

LET LEGISLATURE DECIDE.

So far as we are concerned we are satisfied with local option, and it is not necessary for the State to take any action on the question of right we must all admit that the State should have the right to control the minority in all matters.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

GOOD LUCK BAKING POWDER.

Here you have the Baking Powder—
Good Luck,
That is the synonym for successful baking. Three million people declare it.

6 ounces, 5c.
1 pound, 10c.

The Southern Manufacturing Company,
Richmond, Va.

STATE PRESS.

Better Late Than Never.

The National Model License League is on the right track in declaring for reasonable and even a rigid regulation of the traffic in which its members are engaged.

The election of few men to the Senate brought out a greater number of matrimonial incidents than that of Edward of New York. Since the elevation of Platt and Dewey the Empire State has not been so much the scene of matrimonial scandal as it once was.

So far as we are concerned we are satisfied with local option, and it is not necessary for the State to take any action on the question of right we must all admit that the State should have the right to control the minority in all matters.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to a dose of self-administered, was divorced several years before his death by Florence, sister of the late Sir George Chetwynd. In fact, there is no end to the divorced of this fine old English house of Chetwynd, which extends back to the time of the reign of Henry VIII.

The Hon. Richard Chetwynd, who succeeded last spring to